Maple Leaves

Published by the Students

of

Dublin High School

Wilderness Road Regional Library

Foreword

As we pause on the threshold of a new life, we are grateful for the associations of the past. We value the friendship of our fellow students and the counsel of our teachers. But these warm feelings will not always be so prominent in our lives as they are today. To remind us of the happy and profitable years we have brought together in pictures and in words the chapters which make up our story—MAPLE LEAVES, 1943.

Dedication

As a token of our respect for him as a friend and an administrator, and in appreciation of his fatherly counsel, and loyal service to Dublin High School for twenty years, we dedicate MAPLE LEAVES of 1943 to Mr. Frank Jordan, our principal.

Senior Dairy

It was with a feeling of pride, and fear and trembling, too, that we entered high school in the fall 1939. It was wonderful to be through with the grades. They were so childish, and high school—well, it was sophisticated! It just naturally sounded more distinguished to tell a stranger that you were in high school, and, too, it meant more privileges at home. Why nobody in high school ever carried a load of books home with him and if you didn't have the books Mother and Dad certainly couldn't make you study them.

Just such thoughts passed through the heads of 61 freshmen here at Dublin in September of 1939.

October 15

"Ouch! Those report cards! Say, these teachers mean what they say, don't they? Someway they expect so much more—because we are in high school, they say, and we ought to quit being kids. And then when we brought home those reports tonight, were our faces red! No movies, no parties, NOTHING until grades improved. Gee, this high school business isn't what it's cracked up to be!"

January 25 - '40

"Well, that first semester is over and we made it, or at least some of us did. The rest have transferred or stepped out of the picture. I can't blame them much, but high school isn't so bad and Miss Mustard and Mrs. Davidson are swell homeroom teachers."

June 1

"Hurray, we made it! Sophomores—Real honest-to-goodness Sophomores. No more of that crazy math, or civics, but it just looks like there's no getting away from English."

It was a long summer—until we could get back to school and strut as Sophomores, but everything has an end.

September, 1940

"Here we are, at it again but only 43 of us this time. And would you believe it! We have to take algebra this time and English too! That's just more than a fellow can stand—another year of math and English together. There's no justice. But Mr. Allison, our homeroom teacher, is so good and helpful to us all, that he makes things easier."

At this point in our diary we pause to pay tribute to a member of our class who met with accidental death during our sophomore year — J. B. McTaggart — whose friendship was treasured by all of us."

September, 1941

"Two years ago tonight we were Freshmen, thrilled with the new adventure of high school. But I felt kind of queer today in chapel when Mr. Jordan told us that we were reaching a place when education should mean something vital to us. For the first time, I realized that we aren't juniors just because our parents say we must come to school, but because it is normal for us to move on and take our places in the world."

May, 1942

"Everybody had a wonderful time tonight. Our banquet and the dance for the seniors were really successful. Our chaperons were Mr. and Mrs. Jordan, Miss Mustard, and Miss Chumbley. It won't seem like the same place without these seniors. SENIORS — SENIORS.. Why, we are the next seniors!"

September 2, 1942

"The class of 1943 came in today, 30 strong. Our homeroom teacher, Miss Francis, is a new-comer to Dublin. This will be a busy year. Wonder why we ever thought we were busy a few years back."

April, 1943

"Two months to go. It's been a long hard pull but it was worth it. We are just about to reach the end of our journey and we are all sorry it's over. We could have done better and we could have done worse but then we can profit by these mistakes. They needn't happen again."

May 31, 1943

"'Time marches on!' I used to wonder what that meant but now I know.

"It's all over and I feel so terribly let down. We felt rather low tonight when we marched out of the auditorium. All of us will go our separate ways now and when our paths cross again it will be different..

"But this is no way to feel! Why there's a job for us to do. Little or big, it's ours and we must get at it. There's a war to win and it won't be won by self-pity. Mother is planning to do over the living room. I can help her and then I'll work at the Red Cross Center too! Why I'm just getting to the place where I can really help somebody!

"It's getting late and tomorrow is another day. Goodnight."

Class Prophecy

The faint glow of a wood fire fell softly on the object of the room. It was winter and a chilling wind reminded "Sport" and me that we were fortunate in the comfort of our surroundings. From the radio came the familiar strains of "Beautiful Dreamer." "Sport" got up from his place at the end of the hearth and moved to his favorite spot, the rug at my feet, directly in front of the fireplace. He lay down and settled his head affectionately against my ankle. He seemed to understand that I was alone tonight.

"Ah, 'Sport', those days are gone but I still have the memory and warm feeling in my heart for all those kids. Phyllis—I wonder where she is. Light-hearted Phyllis—never had a care in her life. And Edna. Funny I should think of Phyllis and Edna at the same time. Edna was so quiet—such a contrast to Phyllis."

"Why, it's Victoria Thomas! I am so glad to see you. Sit down. Do sit down and tell me all about yourself, and the rest of our class. It has been ages since I last saw you. I scarcely know what to say first. ——

So Carole became a superintendent of nurses as she planned. I am very glad; and she's at Stuart Circle in Richmond, you say?

Well, I suppose you know that Roxie Scott is now Mrs. Charles Farmer? —— No, I hadn't heard of another wedding but I suppose most of us always expected Naomi to marry Howard anyway.

"Yes, I did hear Johnny Riddle broadcasting from Radio City last night. Johnny has a wonderful tenor voice. — — No, not really? Virginia Faw his private secretary. I just can't believe it!

"And Venena is with F. B. I. in Washington? She always said she would. Remember when we were in school together, she had such an analytical mind.

"You spoke of going to the hospital to see Patsy. I knew she took up technician's work. And in Richmond, too? We certainly haven't deserted the southland.

"You know, I had such a pleasant surprise last week when I attended a symposium at the University of Virginia. — — — Yes, none other than Dr. Thomas Tabor called to my suite and asked me to have dinner at his home. He is head surgeon in the University hospital there now, you know. The next day he was kind enough to show me through the hospital and as I passed down the corridor whom should I see sitting behind a supervisor's desk but Annie Hamblin — — — looking all white, and starched, and very efficient.

"Oh. its wonderful that you could go back to Dublin. What is the place like? A large sheet metal factory? Charlie Weaver's? Well, he certainly was an industrious fellow at school. I suppose with all of that between Dublin and Pulaski it makes a real city.

"Before you leave you must go with me to our most popular beauty salon. — — — You'd never guess! Tokie Akers is the owner but she is in

New York now. She owns several beauty salons throughout the East.

"No, I never heard how many of our girls joined the service, but it doesn't surprise me that Mary Eunice is an army nurse. Lt. Tice! Sounds exciting.

"And Daphne and Sarah really joined the WAVES! They always did crave excitement, and I imagine they've found it.

"Lois Agee? A WAAC! Incredible! Somehow I always pictured her as the domestic type — the heart of a happy home.

"By the way, have you seen today's Journal? I notice that Kelly Surface who is now operator of extensive coal fields in West Virginia is attending a convention in Pittsburgh and there will be present also Rana Elledge, who is a member of the National Labor Relations Board. She's just the type — — a successful career woman.

"You were really entertained by the Governor of Virginia? But what are you doing, Victoria? You've told me about almost everyone but yourself. — — — Your life-long desire! I am happy for you. I hope I am invited to the Governor's Mansion. I'd love to see your painting of the southwest Virginia mountains. I might be able also to see Maggie. I hear she is the Governor's secretary.

"No, you must not go. There are yet several of our class I want to ask you about.

"I imagine Francis and Hensel are extensive farmers now, aren't they? — — Oh, I see. Hensel has the farms and live stock, and Francis is the vetenarian.

"And there's Phyllis. Whatever has become of her? A nurse too! My! We never shall suffer for lack of medical attention, with a class like ours.

"Did I understand you to say that you heard from Phyllis through Margaret Crane? I don't seem to remember her. She wasn't in our class. — — — Oh, Margaret Smith, married and living in Pulaski. I am beginning to understand. — — —

"But, you need not go so soon. It is an hour or more before your train leaves. By plane? — — You mean to tell me that Steveda Sapanas is piloting that plane? I do remember how enthusiastic she and Edna were about aviation when we were in school. Oh, I see. Edna pilots a transcontinental. That IS thrilling.

"You ask about me. There's not a great deal to tell. I am head of the English Department here at the Woman's College of the University. I love my work and I feel as if I could never teach on any campus but Duke's.

"It's been such fun, Victoria. Do come back. Soon!"

"Twelve o'clock midnight. B-U-L-O-V-A, Bulova Watch Time. This is the Columbia Broadcasting System."

"What would we do in this world of ours,
Were it not for the dreams ahead?"

Class Poem

"DREAMS"

There is but a faint glow on the distant horizon;
The dark clouds cast shadowy doubts—
There are none of the sun's reassuring beams,
Yet Hope still breathes,
And Faith achieves
The goal we have built in our dreams.

We are the youth that are crossing the border—
Onward we shall tread alone,
Under gray skies, upon stormy seas,
We are out in a ship all our own—
To raise the sail,
To face the gale
And come sailing home with our dreams.

There'll be no time for pleasure,
For companionship or love;
We'll find that every cloud hasn't a silver lining;
But when there's a break in the gray above
We see a lone white star now shining
With the hope of a better world tomorrow
And the faith we have in our dreams.

—Victoria Thomas

Best of luck and a successful future.

Football

On September 29 the "Dukes" played their first game of the season at Radford. They went to Radford without a coach and less than a week's practice. The "Dukes" fought hard in a well-matched game.

The "Dukes" went to Narrows on October 10th and played a grand game. Still unorganized and without a coach they really played and outfought the Narrows eleven.

The "Dukes" had a game scheduled on October 24th with Rural Retreat but that game was called off.

On November 6th, the "Dukes" traveled to Galax for their first game under the lights. They were outweighed but they really played a well hard-fought game.

The "Dukes" were scheduled to play Rich Valley on November 13th. This was called off.

Jokes

On a rather warm day Steveda Sapanas went up in an airplane for the first time. When she had been up for some time, Steveda pointed to the propeller "all right my man," she said to the pilot, "you can turn the fan off. I feel much cooler."

Home Ec Junior: "I have fried liver, boiled tongue, stewed kidney and pigs feet."

Mr. Wygal: "Don't tell me your ailments, sister, I came in here for a chicken dinner."

Phyllis: "I want some real kiss-proof lipstick."

Clerk: "Try this. It's a cross between an onion and chloride of mercury."

Mrs. Grigsby: "Do you think radios will ever take the place of newspapers."

Jimmy Webb: "No, not entirely. You can't swat flies with a radio."

Mrs. Agee: "Lois, your hair is all mussed up. Did that boy try to kiss you against your will."

Lois: "He thinks he did, mother."

Mary Jane: "I don't think I deserve a zero."

Mrs. Wilkerson: "Neither do I but it's the lowest mark I'm allowed to give."

Mrs. Jordan (reading paper): "Think of it! Here is a couple who got married after a fifty year courtship."

Mr. Jordan: "I suppose the old fellow was too weak to hold out any longer."

Clerk in bookstore: "This book will do half of your work for you."

Kelly Surface: "Fine, I'll take two."

Howard Stanton's Father: (Visiting a hospital) "Son, that's a swell looking nurse you have."

Howard: "I haven't ever noticed her."

Howard's Father: "Heavens son, I had no idea you were that sick."

Did you hear about Bobby Wilson knocking a cow over the bank in front of her house to hear the "Jersey Bounce"? Then she and Mary started dancing.

Mrs. Copenhaver: (Day canned meat was frozen) "Give me a can of salmon, please."
Mr. Hurst: "Sorry lady but all of my canned meat is frozen."
Mrs. Copenhaver: "That is all right. I can thaw them out when I

Keith Taylor: "That word means fight where I come from."
Charles Harman: "Well, why don't you fight then."
Keith Taylor: "Cause I ain't where I came from."

Mrs. Copenhaver: "Seems to me you are a little afraid of work."
Johnny Riddle: "Afraid, my eye! I can lie right down beside it and go to sleep."

Miss Allison: "Francis, I want you to stay after school."
Francis: "It won't do you any good. I'm a woman hater."

"I sneezed a sneeze into the air,
It fell to the ground, I know not where
But hard and cold were the looks of those
In whose vicinity I snoze."

Miss Ratcliff: "What happens when the human body is immersed in water?"
Charles Morehead: "The telephone rings."

Mr. Green: "Son, did you have the car out last nite."
Ross: "Yes, Dad, I took some of the boys for a ride."
Mr. Green: "Tell them I found two of their lip-sticks."

Vic Thomas: "Why did you tie your arm up just above your watch?"
Mary Eunice T.: "To keep the ticks from running up my arm."

Mary Jane: "Willard, why did you go to the shipyard last summer."
Willard: "To look for a blood vessel."

Eugene: "You know, I'm in 4-F."
Sarah: When did you find out."
Eugene: "When I got my report card."
